

MDC Modular Conveyors

UNITEL manufactures a range of modular conveyor for various applications in many industries.

Modular Conveyor MDC -25 are a family of small pitch plastic modular conveyors used in the food, confectionary plastics, wood, or metallic industries.

The MDC-50 types use a heavy duty 50.8 mm link for handling heavy loads. They are found in the tire industry, wood industry, bottle and bottling industries, package and unit goods handling and other demanding applications.

They are virtually maintenance-free, are easy to replace and do not require guiding or belt training.

There are numerous accessories available such as flights, side walls, guards, and hold-downs.

MDC Modular Conveyors

Features

These conveyors have many advantages since they offer superior performance and long life. They do not require adjustments for belt alignment, and are easily maintained, with the possibility of replacing any broken sections without having to change the entire belt.

The use of sprockets to drive the belt eliminates the need for tensioning the belt, offer positive engagement of the belt by the sprockets and eliminates alignment and training of the belt.

Characteristics

Various materials are available from our business partners Habasit which are food grade , FDA approved belts, oil resistant belts or general purpose belts in polyethylene, polypropylene or PolyOxymethelene (Acetal)

The modular belts slide on special low-wear, low-friction and self-lubricated wear-strips.

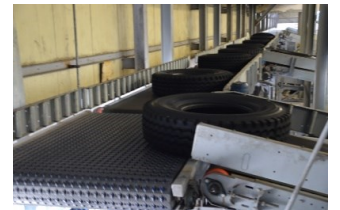

Many accessories are available such as side-guards, and flights, as well as several types of head sprockets and tail pulleys.

Applications

MDC-25 conveyors are normal duty conveyors used in food, pharmaceutical, poultry, meat confectionary and many other food industries. They are also well suited for general transportation of unit goods such as cartons, tote boxes, bottling and canning, tobacco, textiles and packing and packaging etc...

The MDC-50 family uses heavy duty 50 mm belt links and is used whenever heavy loads are conveyed. There are special types of links designed for particular industries such as the tire industry,, bag and luggage handling, wood industries, airport conveyors and similar heavy duty applications.
